Aztec Sacrificial Stone

The Aztec Sacrificial Stone display features the Aztec Calendar Stone or “Stone of the sun” which shows us the road map of the Aztecs’ destiny. The Sacrificial Stone matches the dimensions of the previous Madagascar and Tiki in-store promo “crates”. The Sacrificial Stone can be placed vertically or horizontally and can thus hold a 45 x 45cm Natural Terrarium in the vertical position or a 45 x 60cm Natural Terrarium in the horizontal position. When 2 Sacrificial Stones placed in vertical position next to each other, they can hold the Aztec Terrarium Display.

Aztec Ornaments

In roughly 200 years, the Aztec empire grew from a nomadic tribe to the ruling empire in the valley of Mexico and beyond. The legend goes that the place where they built their capital was indicated by a sign of the gods: an eagle perched on top of a cactus, holding a snake.

Aztec culture was strongly connected to nature, attributing supernatural powers to several animals. The snake played an important role, representing fertility and abundance. Frogs, toads and amphibians in general symbolised earth and rain and were associated with water, fertility and agriculture.

While Eagles were considered supreme aerial predators: fearless, brave and daring. Religion was another important aspect of the Aztec culture and was characterised by a whole range of gods. To honour these gods, they raised impressive statues, created beautiful relics and built magnificent temples.

Exo Terra's Aztec Range creates a mystical ancient mesoamerican atmosphere in your terrarium. The Aztec terrarium and decoration is inspired by the astonishing art and impressive relics that were left behind by pre-Columbian cultures.

Revive and admire the magnificence of this lost civilisation by decorating your terrarium with one or more of the functional Exo Terra Aztec decoration items!

Aztec Waterfall

Exo Terra®'s Aztec Sacred Maize Waterfall fits the ancient Mesoamerican Aztec theme perfectly. Since many reptiles do not recognise still or stagnant water as a source of drinking water, the Aztec Waterfall will be readily used by reptiles and amphibians, keeping them healthy and hydrated.

The cascading water stimulates the natural drinking behaviour of various lizards (like: chameleons, anoles, water dragons, etc...). Cleaning is easy, as the waterfall can be dismantled into two parts. A pump is included to provide water circulation.

Aztec Warrior

The Exo Terra® Aztec Eagle Knight Warrior hide fits the ancient Mesoamerican Aztec theme. The Aztec Eagle Knights were an elite military order, comprised of the most accomplished and noble soldiers, fearless, brave and daring like their Eagle counterpart. The Eagle Knight Hide ensures that your animals have a secure hiding place that will support thermo-regulation and hydration. A proper hiding area is an essential feature of a natural terrarium.

Aztec Calendar

The Exo Terra® Aztec Calendar Stone Hide-out fits the ancient Mesoamerican Aztec theme. The Aztec Calendar Stone or “Stone of the sun” is not your usual calendar, but rather shows a road map of the Aztecs’ destiny. Symbols on the stone tell about both the beginning and end of the world. In the centre of the stone they carved the face of their most important god: Tonatiuh God of the Sun.

The Calendar Stone Hide-out ensures that your animals have a secure hiding place that will support thermo-regulation and hydration. A proper hiding area is an essential feature of a natural terrarium.

Aztec Frog

Exo Terra®'s Aztec Frog Water Dish fits the ancient Mesoamerican Aztec theme. Frogs, toads and amphibians in general symbolised earth and rain and were associated with Tlaloc, the god of water, fertility and agriculture.

The presence of clean and fresh water is important for the proper care and maintenance of reptiles and amphibians. The shape of the Aztec Frog Water Dish is especially designed to prevent it from being tipped over, and to avoid spilling water.

Aztec Bowl

Exo Terra®'s Aztec Water Dish fits the ancient Mesoamerican Aztec theme. The Aztec's sacred garden Texcotzingo, dedicated to the rain god Tlaloc, featured a pool carved from solid rock.

The presence of clean and fresh water is important for the proper care and maintenance of captive reptiles and amphibians. The Aztec Water Dish is easy to clean and the smooth non-porous surface will not absorb harmful bacteria. The shape of the Aztec Water Dish is especially designed to prevent it from being tipped over, and to avoid spilling water.
